September Program - Early Afro-Americans In Defiance County

Dianne Kline, a DCGS member, presented the program "Early Afro-Americans in Defiance County." She pointed out some of the many resources she used in order to glean information for her presentation--censuses, military and land records, and newspaper accounts. Dianne told of Ohio's black laws which governed treatment of Afro-Americans from 1804-1849 and the importance of having a certificate of freedom. Without it, Afro-American were subject to arrest as were those harboring or helping run-aways in any way.

Dianne also pointed out that census takers noted only the color of person and indicated that on the census. At various times only black or white was listed; other years the census taker could indicate mulatto-- based again only upon the color of the skin. Children of the same parents could and were listed different racially.

From the 18950 census, there were 11 blacks living in the city of Defiance and 9 in Richland Township, namely the Neil family. By 1880 there were 65 in Defiance, 5 in Richland, and 124 in Highland. Dianne followed several families. Edward Fidler, a successful barber, was in Defiance County as early as 1845. Twenty years later he had moved to Illinois with a net worth of $5000 and eight children, two of whom were barbers.

The Lett Family lived for 36 years in the same cabin in Milford Township. George was a shingle maker and had ten children. At age 36 he fought in the Civil War and was noted to be white. Other families Dianne followed were the Carters, Worthingtons, Hubbards, Vinegars, Mumfords, and Scotts.

October - Board Meeting Highlights

Richard Rozevink of the Veterans' Historical Committee noted that he had received a letter from Helene Werner, Historic Landmarks Chair, noting that she had received his thank-you for the donation from the National Society United States Daughters of 1812 and the two certificates. She apologized for not being able to attend the dedication for Winchester Camp # 2.

After much discussion concerning dues for the coming year, the board decided to keep the single membership at $12.00 and the family membership at $15.00. Due to increased publishing and mailing costs, it was decided to request an additional $5.00 for mailing the four issues of the newsletter. Members may request email newsletters at no cost or they may indicate they do not wish to receive the newsletter.

Albert W. King and the Sultana Disaster

The following information came from chapter member Joanne Allison.

My great-grandmother's maiden name was Hulda Emilie King. Her brother Albert W. King from Defiance served with Company D, 100th Reg., Ohio Volunteer Infantry. I recently was fortunate enough to make connection with the great-grand niece of Albert W. King, (and also the great-granddaughter of John Martin Richholt), and she has Albert's diary telling about his experience as a survivor of the sinking of the Sultana. A book entitled Loss of the Sultana and Reminiscences of Survivors: Voices of the Civil War edited by Chester D. Berry contains Albert's story. His account can also be found at a National Geographic Site: http://news.nationalgeographic.com/news/2001/05/0501_river5.html.

And in Albert's words:

"I jumped upon the stern railing and watched the crowd in the water waiting to see an opening to make the jump without striking anyone, and when I did make the plunge I came in contact with drowning men, and when I came to the supposed surface I struck the bottom of the boat; but I soon succeeded in getting out but many were still on the water and got a hold of me but I fought hard for freedom and saw a chance to pass under the stern of the boat without being nabbed when a lady jumped down upon me and getting a hold of my shirt, and nearly strangled me, I soon broke away from her and swimming but a short distance, when a board came up in front of me which I grabbed for support and returned to help the lady who was loudly calling for assistance, when another board popped up in front of me I placed one on top of the other and went back to her and placed the boards under her arms when she informed me that she had on a life preserver which slipped down when she jumped down from the cabin window to water while clinging to a rope.

"I was cautious to keep her in front of me working hard to the Arkansas side; often she would ask me if I thought we would be saved; to this I could give her no encouraging answer as everything around us was now in darkness and many going in the same direction and calling loudly for help.

"The boat had been burned down and was floating a

Inquiry from Member

Olney Rice Family of Defiance County

I believe that the Olney Rice m. to Lydia Barrows, is the brother of my g.g.grandmother Ada Rice. I believe Olney is the father of both Ada and Olney b. 1799 VT. I also think that Nathan Rice is the father of the first Olney. I believe that the Rice family came to Ohio with the William Pierce and the Truman Needham families from New York. Any further help with Oney/Olney Rice (father of Ada who m. Wm. G. Pierce) in New York, would be appreciated.

Lois Durr

If you have any information concerning this family, please contact our membership chair, Dianne Kline in care of the chapter. She will provide you with contact information for Lois Durr.

long distance below us when I discovered we were drifting in amongst brush up on an island over which the water was rushing many feet deep. We were soon seated on a log among driftwood and, by me holding onto a cottonwood sappling we could keep our heads above water. Some time after daylight we were picked up by men in a large rowboat attracted to us by Commander L. G. Morgan who called to them for to pick us up which they did and were taken to a cabin on the island and placed before a hot fire in a fireplace in company with many others where we soon thawed out.

“Later in the day we were taken aboard a small steamer with many others and transported to Memphis. On landing we were given wool underclothes by the citizens - I presume merchants of Memphis. As I refused to go to the hospital I was taken along with others to the Soldiers Home, some distance out from the city;

“The lady was taken charge of by some doctors. While we were in front of a good fire in the cabin on the island, in the presence of one of my company comrades, the lady took from her finger a very nice ring and presented to me saying that she was the wife of an engineer, who operating on the Red River, that his name was W. E. Perry whom she had just visited and was on her way home in Cincinnati and had lost all her valuables in the disaster.

“Twenty years later I went to Cincinnati to locate these Perrys but did not succeed. Afterwards I tried to find them by using the newspapers but without learning anything as to their whereabouts.”

Johnson Miller Co. E, 14th Regiment

Johnson Miller of Sherwood, Ohio enlisted as a private on August 21, 1861 at the age of nineteen. He was promoted to full sergeant 11 Jan. 1864, promoted to full corporal 14 Jan. 1864, and promoted to full first sergeant 22 June, 1865. He mustered out 11 July 1865.

Johnson was wounded twice-- at Kenesaw Mountain and at Chicamauga. It was at Kenesaw Mountain that he was struck by a spent minie ball in the forehead just above the left eye. According to one of his relatives, “The ball did not have enough force to go through his thick skull. This spent minie ball only went about half way through Johnson’s skull. The Civil War doctors were afraid to take it out, so they left it there as it was.” According to the relative’s son, Johnson’s skin eventually grew around the minie ball, and he went for the rest of his life with the ball stuck in his skull.

When he was still a private, Johnson Miller’s commander at the Battle of Franklin Tennessee was Lt. Colonel (later Brig. General) Isaac Sherwood. After the war, about 1875, when General Sherwood had become the Congressional Representative for Defiance County, Johnson recommended that the small settlement along the B&O Railroad in which he lived be named Sherwood in honor of Isaac Sherwood. The village was so named, so that a post office could be established.

Coincidentally, the village was almost named Millersburg in honor of one Elias Miller, Johnson’s father who was one of the early platters of the village. Elias Miller had five sons, all of whom were active in businesses in the village. The pre-existence of a Millersburg in Ohio precluded the Millersburg name.

Well, here we go again-- you didn’t tell me to stop. With the holidays coming up, I decided to run “Christmas on a Canal Boat.” Here it goes.

Christmas on a Canal Boat

How are we going to spend Christmas! exclaimed the good-natured Mrs. Captain Boggs seemingly a bit surprised at the question, for canal boat folks are sensitive of any criticism aimed in their direction.

“Why we’re going to spend the day just like other folks. Some think because we live on a canal boat, we don’t have any comforts and eat like savages. My, but I’d heap-sight rather live down here than in a flat like my niece. She’s got six rooms and they can’t begin to be as big as mine. If you think there ain’t room just look here.”

Mrs. Boggs then displayed the secrets of a suit of rooms, the ingenuity of the arrangement rivaling the den of a New York bachelor girl. Out of the cabin which served as living and dining rooms combined, jutted two alcoves beside the kitchen which was even tinier than the modern apartment kitchenette.

While under ordinary circumstances, the kitchen was part of the cabin proper-- two doors all right angles to each other-- could be drawn out so that they could form a room by itself. A shiny coal stove or range quite filled the compartment leaving just room enough to work, while above it every inch of wall space was util-

The 68th OVI

According to the History of Defiance County 1883, the 100th began its first winter 1861-1862 in comparative luxury. The regiment was organized at Camp Latty in Napoleon with one company from each of Defiance, Paulding, Williams, Henry, and Fulton Counties-- the rest coming from Henry County. The men had Sibley tents furnished with stoves and plenty of supplies received from their homes. On January 21, 1862 the men moved to Camp Chase near Cincinnati where they trained until Feb. 7.

Arriving in Danelson, Tennessee, the regiment was assigned to Gen. Charles Smith's division and were immediately involved in skirmishes. After Pittsburg Landing, due to bad weather and illness the regiment, originally numbering about 1000 was reduced to about 250 men. The regiment was then assigned to Gen. Lew Wallace. Around Corinth, Mississippi, the regiment was engaged in building roads, bridges, and trenches. They saw action in the battles of Iuka and Metamora. During the campaign in Mississippi the regiment was assigned to the Second Brigade, Third Division, 17th Army Corps with which it remained the rest of the war.

In Louisiana the men working clearing roads and bridges in the bayous. Thereafter they were involved in the siege of Vicksburg fighting in such battles as Thompson's Hill, Raymond, Champion Hills, Big Black, and Fort Hill. After the battle at Jackson, the unit guarded 600 prisoners into Vicksburg. After a rest, the unit went on to fight at Monroe, Louisiana and after due to injury or illness, the unit lost one-third of its men.

The 68th was one of the first regiments in the 17th Corp. to report three-fourth of its men to reenlist. In December the unit headed north on its veterans' furlough. In Toledo they especially received a warm welcome with a band and parae through the streets.

In May, by train, they headed back to Cairo, Mississippi, joining some one hundred new recruits, that had been left in Mississippi. Here the regiment was given new Springfield rifles and 750 strong, they joined Sherman in the Atlanta campaign where the 68th was under almost constant fighting. After Atlanta, the unit moved on the Savannah and then through North Carolina and Virginia eventually ending in Washington City where it took part in the grandreview on May 24, 1865.

By war's end the 68th had been in every rebel state except Florida and Texas. It had marched over 7000 miles and traveled by railroad and steamboat over 6000 miles.

ized for pots and kitchen utensils of every sort. A low cupboard opening into the hold contained more articles of kitchen usage, as well as vegetables and canned goods.

Bunks were displayed in the two other alcoves which were in open view of the cabin. But from the recesses of the boat, Mrs. Boggs pulled out a sliding door which completely divided the space into two rooms and when curtains were drawn into the cabin the occupants enjoyed all the privacy desired. A big divider could be opened up at night into a roomy double bed, and another bunk just under the bed was sufficiently large to tuck two small youngsters away. A chest of drawers built in and wardrobes and cupboards in out of the way places supplied room for bedding and clothing and boots and shoes for a family of children.

One of the biggest surprises in the boat, one which bore a hint that might be applied in small houses where room is of a premium was the preserved fruit locker.

“We all do up our own fruit,” said Mrs. Boggs. “You see while we go up the canal we are in the country most of the time, and it is much cheaper to put up our own fruit then buy it in the winter, and this is where we store it.”

Going to the stairs up the companion way, she pulled out tiny drawers. Small knobs jutted out from the drawers. Within there was quite room enough to allow pint fruit jars standing upright. A cold storage room was tucked away in the hold into which a small door about two feet in height opened. The dining room table was a folding affair which turned up against the wall of the cabin when not in use.

When some surprise was expressed at the presence of a sewing machine in the room, Mrs. Boggs said, “Oh, that’s nothing. Many of the boats have organs as well, and there is one fitted up with a porcelain bath tub. So you see we have some of the luxuries of city houses, and a lot of good air and sunshine. A concert is to be given on one of the boats here New Year’s Eve, and if you should like to come down, we’d be glad to have you and show you a bit of canal boat hospitality.”

five years. In 2006 the museum opened in Bowling Green. At that time there were about 500 artifact and several thousand visitors came each year. Later as more space and support from the community was needed, the museum moved to Tiffin where over 10,000 square feet is now available for exhibits. The museum, now housed in a former post office built in 1915, has eight exhibit rooms with many hands-on opportunities. Some of the exhibits are the Life of a Soldier, In the Hands of the Enemy, Johnson Island, the Road to War. Mr. Young also noted that there are two traveling programs available for groups-Ohio's Part in the Civil War and the Life of a Soldier.
